THE BROKEN CONDOM BABIES TO PERFORM LIVE AT THE ROXY ON MARCH 11TH

Vancouver February 10, 2008 – The Roxy Nightclub and C-Fox present Vancouver’s own original indie band, The Broken Condom Babies, performing live at The Roxy at 932 Granville Street, on Tuesday March 11th at 8:30 p.m. This will be their first live appearance in over three months. The Condom Babies will be performing six new songs during the show. Doors open at 8:00 p.m., with the first band taking the stage at 8:30 p.m. (opening band TBA). Admission includes one free drink and a slice of pizza. Tickets can be downloaded at the Roxy’s official site: <http://www.roxyvan.com>.

The Broken Condom Babies were conceived by vocalist/guitarist Aaron Grant and producer/guitarist Jerry Wong after realizing that a lot of today's music had become predictable, pretentious and other words that begin with “pre.” Their quirky chord progressions and only mildly offensive lyrics will put even the stiffest square into an uncontrollable dancing frenzy. Showcasing their unorthodox stage maneuvers and humorous 'in-between-songs' banter, their live show is not to be missed...but be careful not to become impregnated by their infectious juice.

The guys are getting ready to mix their upcoming record with Dave "Rave" Ogilvie (Skinny Puppy, Nine Inch Nails, Marilyn Manson) and will soon be heading to Toronto to play hockey in the Exclaim! Cup for Exclaim! Magazine! More important than anything else...their moms think they're a pretty good band!!

Free songs are available for downloading at the band's official site, as well as videos for viewing:
